A Parent's Prayer: The Shlah's Prayer

"We are obligated to pray and beseech G-d for all our needs, because He is the source of everything. Thus, for anything that man needs, any hour of the day, he should have at the ready a short prayer to G-d, Who is the source of all hope. And during any action one should pray to G-d, the Holy Spirit, King of the Universe, to help bring success in one's actions, for all stems from Him.

Moreover, one should pray to G-d for children and to find a proper marriage partner, for all this comes from Him. And from my heart I say that the most proper time for prayer is the eve of the first day of the Hebrew month of Sivan, for during that month the Torah was given, when G-d's children are called to Him."

Editorial

To remind myself and others than even in the midst of challenging times it is also possible to have positive experiences, I found these 50 phrases below in a previous editorial. They are from the book, 14,000 Things to be Happy About by Barbara Ann Kipfer. She introduces her list by saying that she sometimes brightens a gray day by flipping through her list to cheer herself up, and she urges her readers to find the happiness that comes from noticing and enjoying the little things in life.

On Feb. 2nd, these words (below in italics) were posted on the Instagram profile of Maria Shriver, award-winning broadcast journalist and NBC anchor-woman. You might know her better as the niece of President John F. Kennedy.

She has written several self-help books including a #1 New York Times bestseller. Her profile is titled, "The Sunday Paper: The News and Views Above the Noise, Inspiring Hearts and Minds, Moving Humanity Forward". She has a way of expressing complex ideas with just a few easy to understand words that are also inspiring:

"Your mindset can make or break you. Talk to yourself with positive words. Give your brain clear instructions for this new week. Follow your lead, follow your own directions. Drop the doubt. You know where you are going."

In the comments below her post she added more. "This is the time to reset your mind for the week ahead. You control how you think about yourself and how you think about others. You have the power to think positive thoughts and to allow your positivity to propel you forward into the best week ever! Clear your mind of the negative self doubt, and get ready for all the good that is coming your way!"

A must-see movie

The Song of Names (tickets.thesongofnames.com) is a unique Holocaust themed movie with surprises, twists and turns that keep it fast-paced and interesting. Directed by François Girard (The Red Violin) from a screenplay by Jeffrey Caine (The Constant Gardener) and produced by Robert Lantos, the film is based on a novel by Norman Lebrecht.

The movie revolves around the lives of two nine-year-old boys who meet in 1940s London. Three different actors play the boys as they age. One of the young boys is Martin Simmonds (Misha Handley) and the other is Dovidl Rapoport (Luke Doyle).

Shortly before World War II, Martin's music publisher father, Gilbert (Stanley Townsend), invites Dovidl, a Jewish violin prodigy from Poland, to live in their London home. Gilbert's intent is to help the boy achieve his musical potential and protect him from the imminent German invasion of Poland.

The relationship of the two main characters starts out tense but eventually they become close like brothers. As they grow into young men, Dovidl is played by Jonah Hauer-King and Martin by Gerran Howell. In 1951 an unexpected separation leaves them out of touch with each other.

A lot of the movie revolves around a time almost four decades later when Martin (now played by Tim Roth) searches to find his missing Jewish "brother" Dovidl, played by Clive Owen. Catherine McCormack plays Martin's wife Helen who is annoyed by his obsession about finding his long lost "brother".

As the movie goes back and forth between the different time periods, smooth

I don't usually watch Holocaust movies, but this one does not have a lot of gruesome images, and it has beautiful music scored by Howard Shore (The Lord of the Rings, The Silence of the Lambs, Philadelphia, The Aviator). The Song of Names is a profoundly moving piece of music and a haunting violin solo toward the end is exquisite. Exhibit About Holocaust Survivor Eva Mozes Kor

On Jan. 27, 2020, the Indiana Historical Society (IHS) announced that it will build the first major exhibition devoted to Eva Kor in Indianapolis. To do so, it is partnering with Kor's son Alex Kor, Ted Green Films, and WFYI. The latter two co-produced the well-known 2018 documentary, Eva: A-7063, about her path from anger to forgiveness. Plans are for the exhibit to open in early 2021.

The announcement came on the 75th anniversary of the liberation of the Auschwitz concentration camp. And it came on the same day that thousands of middle and high school students have their eyes glued to classroom TVs for Eva's documentary. Gov. Eric Holcomb proclaimed that Monday as officially "Eva Education Day."

IHS President and CEO Jody Blankenship said they were honored to be the place where all of the artifacts and pieces of Eva's story would come together. The partnership is still in the early stages of planning the exhibit. Blankenship said the exhibit will be up for at least 18 months, though he's not yet sure where it will be inside the Indiana History Center. ✨

Seated Eva Kor, z"l: Standing L-R: Eva's son Alex, Dorothy Chambers, former director of CANDLES, her documentary's co-producer, Ted Green, Michael Skolnick, Beth Nairn, and Franci Fealk, when Eva was awarded the Hoosier Jewish Legends award in 2017.

Amazing Good News

Recently we heard some really good news. A daring and surprising American military action brought about the death of one of Israel's worst enemies, General Kaasem Suleiman of Iran. He was the chief supporter of three terrorist organizations who aim to destroy Israel, G-d forbid. Every year he would send them millions of dollars, give them deadly weapons and military training. He was responsible for the terrible terrorist attacks against the Jews of Argentina. We thank G-d for this wonderful miracle, and for all of the miracles that He shows us.

I, personally, and my family living here in Israel, have not suffered seriously from these terrorists. We live in Kfar Chabad, a beautiful village located in the center of Israel, not far from Tel Aviv. However, many thousands of Jews living in the south of Israel have been suffering from these terrorists almost daily. They shoot rockets at many cities. When they shoot at a city, the air raid sirens go off, and everybody has only one minute to run to the bomb shelter. Many houses and buildings have been destroyed, and many people have suffered from trauma and injury. Thank G-d, we see many miracles. Few people were killed.

Indeed, we see that our world is getting better all of the time. The forces of good are getting stronger, and the forces of evil are getting weaker. In the past, the stronger nations would go to war to conquer the weaker nations and rule over them. Twenty-five hundred years ago the Persians went to war to rule the world. They conquered many nations, including Israel, and brought death and destruction to millions. Two hundred years later the Greeks went to war and took over, again bringing terrible death and destruction. They were followed two hundred years later by the Romans. History records the many wars and empires that followed.

Two hundred years ago Napoleon went to war to conquer the world. Though he succeeded to conquer many countries, his empire did not last long. He was eventually defeated and sent into exile, and that was the end of his empire. Here we see already a case of the forces of evil that were overcome by the forces of good.

I grew up in America during the time of the cold war. Russia wanted to conquer the world. Here also we see that our world was getting better. A cold war was so much better than the hot wars that had come before. And then 30 years ago the cold war came to a peaceful end. This was truly amazing. World War II came to an end when two atomic bombs destroyed two cities, killing over 100,000 civilians. The cold war ended when the communist government of Russia died peacefully, with no casualties!

The evil communist regime in Russia lasted for 70 years. This regime was responsible for the death of over 50 million(!) innocent citizens. In one winter alone Stalin starved to death 5 million farmers and their families, because they refused to give their farms away to the evil government. Now, Thank G-d, the government of Russia is cooperating with almost all of the nations of the world to make our world better. Many other wicked regimes have since fallen. Only three or four evil regimes are left, and they are all losing power. We pray that they too will soon die peacefully.

Today, thank G-d, the situation has greatly improved. The stronger nations of the world are not trying to conquer their weaker neighbors. Not only that, they are trying to help the weaker nations, to improve the lives of all people!

What is happening to our world? Our spiritual leader, the Lubavitcher Rebbe teaches us that we are now seeing the fulfillment of the words of our prophets that a time will come when our world will be totally good! No more war, no more crime, no more sickness, no more death. This new and wonderful period is called the end of days, the days of Moshiach. Moshiach, in English, Messiah, will be a ruler, a descendant of King David. He and his followers will bring the world to a state of perfection.

Who is causing all of this? You and me! Every good deed that we do brings more good into our world. Every good deed that I do, every word of Torah that I learn brings goodness into my life and to the world that I live in. This is added to all of the good deeds of our forefathers.

We believe that our Rebbe is himself (see Benzion, page IN 10)

Indiana Board of Rabbis (IBOR) Response to Recent Acts of Anti-Semitism – Jan. 5, 2020

The sad news of another attack on the Jewish community, most recently on the seventh night of Hanukkah at a rabbi's home in New York, leaves us anxious, sad, fatigued, and searching for a meaningful response.

The Indiana Board of Rabbis condemns all these acts of violence. We mourn those who were murdered and pray for the healing of the victims. IBOR affirms the unity among all Jews, regardless of level of observance, including orthodox, non-orthodox and secular. We are one people: am Yisra'el. IBOR also affirms our connection with the many faith communities of Indiana, and we commit to fighting bigotry in all forms. And while we recognize and support the need for increased security in our Jewish institutions, we continue to practice Judaism without fear, and are proud to work with our partners to promote tolerance, acceptance, civility and justice during the new year and new decade.

About the Cover

Jet's Jewish Journey: A Tribute to Jewish Camping

By CHUCK COHEN

Our grandson, Jet Cohen Bautista, was born Oct. 18, 2002 in Palm Springs, Calif., with a rare congenital syndrome: Goldenhar syndrome, characterized by incomplete development of the ear, heart problems, and asymmetry of the mandible. At three months, Jet was rushed to Loma Linda Children's Hospital because of breathing difficulties. Over the next seven months, Jet was on life support and had a variety of surgeries – tracheal reconstruction, two open-heart surgeries to repair holes in his heart, nissen fundoplication surgery to permanently prevent gastric reflux, gastrointestinal tube insertion for feeding – and, ultimately, a tracheotomy. Jet had gained only one pound during this ordeal, but finally he started to thrive.

While wearing the tracheotomy tube, Jet was unable to speak, so he learned to communicate with sign language. At age three, when his tracheotomy tube was removed, Jet started to grow into a normal little boy, but he still had some disfiguring birth defects. When he started school, he was subjected to the teasing and bullying that all too often plagues anyone who looks and talks differently. Needless to say, Jet's self-esteem was slow to develop.

To give a little background, Jet's mother, our daughter, Danielle, was raised in a Reform Jewish tradition, had a Bat Mitzvah, and is a strong cultural Jew. She married Ron Bautista in a Jewish ceremony officiated by a Rabbi. Jet and his older sister, Blaze, know that they are Jewish but have neither belonged to a Temple nor attended religious school with any regularity. Our older daughter Amy and her family are modern Orthodox Jews who live in Skokie, Ill. Amy's four sons, the youngest of which (Gilad) is one year younger than Jet, have long attended Camp Moshava, an Orthodox camp in Wild Rose, Wisc. For years, whenever Jet would visit his cousin, Gil, he would play with him and his friends on Shabbat, and felt very accepted – completely unlike his experiences at school.

One day, about four years ago, Amy, aware of the social problems Jet was experiencing, suggested to us that he might like to go to Camp Moshava with her boys. My wife Karen and I said we would take care of it, if Jet and Danielle were interested, and they were! To prepare his friends for the arrival of his cousin Jet at camp, Gil told them to make a special effort to help Jet feel comfortable. The friend whose house Gil was visiting told his mother about Jet. When she asked Gil about his cousin, Gil cried as he explained the situation.

So that summer, Jet attended Orthodox camp for four weeks. He was the most popular kid at camp. All the counselors loved him. His growth – particularly in self-respect – was remarkable. When Jet returned home, he said, "Grampy, I want to go back next year!" Knowing that, obviously, we were going to let him go back, I said, "Well, you'll have to do some things to earn the right to go, like brushing your teeth and taking a shower every night." Jet agreed.

Jet's family had moved over the summer, and when he began attending a new school that fall, he reported that he was being bullied. Danielle decided that Jet needed a smaller classroom environment and enrolled him in Catholic school. Having just returned from Orthodox camp, Jet was now having to attend Mass at school. He put his fingers in his ears so he wouldn't hear. When I asked him once game battled on through the third quarter with the team closing the gap to one point at 24-25. While they played their hardest, the game ended with us finally losing by five points, 34-39. Leading the scorecard was Harris Nachlis with 22 points, followed by Yoav Ehrlich with 6 points, Gabriel Vasquez-Jaffe with 4, and Moses Fineman with 2. The rest of the team played wonderfully as well, supporting the team with good passing, assisting shooters, and playing fierce defense.

I've seen hundreds of basketball games in my time here at HHAI and I have to say this performance was one of the best efforts I've ever witnessed in Melrose Gym. A true story of never judging a book by its cover and to never give up. I know I can speak for everyone there that we are all very proud of each member of this team and how they represented their if he was going to baseball practice that night, Jet said he couldn't because he had to study for a test on the 14 stations of the cross. Jet did okay at Catholic school, though. He was the best player on his 7th grade basketball team and, even though the team was terrible, Jet gained greater self-esteem.

The next summer, Jet returned to Camp Moshava for six weeks. Again, he had a great time and told me that he wanted to return the next summer. I told him we wanted to hear more detail about what he did at camp so we arranged a Facetime call. He told me all about Tisha B'av, that it was a fast day but they had an optional breakfast. I asked if he had eaten breakfast, and he said he had. Then they went to daven, came back to rest, then went back to daven some more. I said, "Wait a minute. You mean they davened?" "No" he said, "I davened, too." I said, "How could you daven?" To which he replied, "They're teaching me the aleph bet." That gave me a thought. Amy was planning Gil's Bar Mitzvah to be in Israel and, though not wanting to take any of the limelight away from Gil, I asked Amy if we could have a Bar Mitzvah for Jet in Israel. She said that would be fine, but perhaps Jet would enjoy having his Bar Mitzvah at camp with his friends. So, last August, at Camp Moshava, surrounded by his family and friends, Jet had his Bar Mitzvah.

was very excited, not only because I was back in machaneh and the summer was finally getting started, but also because I had a chanich who was new to camp. His name was Jet, and he was coming all the way to Wisconsin from Palm Springs. As I met Jet that night, we got to talking and he told me he was a little nervous because he wasn't so familiar with all the Jewish stuff. I told him that we both had a lot of time together and we could help each other out. So that night we made a deal: I would help Jet out with the Jewish stuff and he would help teach me how to be cool.

That night me, Noah and Elliot taught Jet the shema and from there he's flown. That summer and the following I had the privilege of either being Jet's counselor or being his chavruta on Shabbat afternoon. I'm not sure how much cooler I've gotten, but Jet has made tremendous strides in "the Jewish stuff" and has taught me and many others so much along the way. One big lesson I learned was last year on Shabbat afternoon. I had asked Jet why Shabbat was his favorite day besides for the Shabbos walks. He answered with something that sticks with me every week. "On Shabbat," he said, "everyone has a place and everyone can join, no matter who they are or where they came from." I'm so proud of Jet and all that he's accomplished, and I am so happy to have him as a part of my Moshava family. Mazal tov, kid, and see you soon.

Jet's journey is far from over, but his growth and maturity have absolutely taken off, and much of this can be attributed to his Jewish camping experience. P.S. Jet now attends public school.

She had one sister who was her best friend, Marjorie Bradford. She married Julius Maurer, Ben Paller, Wayne Burnham and Jules Carlin. All five preceded her in death.

Betty lived her life with gusto. She always saw the good in others. She was an integral part of the Indianapolis Jewish community, a role model in giving back. She graduated from Shortridge High School. When she attended Indiana University, she was one of the founders of the Jewish sorority, Sigma Delta Tau. She was an excellent cook, creative artist, enjoyed planning parties, and helped friends and family design their homes. She loved traveling and was an avid golfer and tennis player into her late 80's.

Being with her family and friends was her greatest joy. She was proud of and survived by her children, Michael "Mickey" (Janie), Ronald (Jean), Bonnie (Jeff Freemas) and Wendi (Elliot Shev), and her step children Alan Paller and Joanie Paller Bines and her many grand and great grand children.

The family thanks all of her dear caregivers: Sharon Noel, Arzella Williams, Caroline Tekete, Debra Arnold, Debbie Carter, Denisa Noel and Peggy Thomas for their excellent help in caring for Betty.

Her funeral was held at the Beth-El Zedeck Chapel on December 30th. Instead of flowers, the family suggests donations to the Sidney Maurer Memorial Feed the Hungry Fund at Beth-El Zedeck or to the charity of your choice. Arrangements by Aaron-Ruben-Nelson Mortuary.

Justin Harris Libby, son of Miriam and Julian Libby of Cincinnati was professor emeritus in the department of history at IUPUI. After a seven year battle with lung cancer, Justin died peacefully in his sleep on Jan. 28, 2020. For more than 40 years, whether teaching American history or one of his specialties, Japan and International Relations, he made history come alive by requiring his students to ask questions and discover new ideas.

His commitment to his students went beyond the lecture hall, however. He was always ready to support those who arrived on campus lacking academic preparation, who came from other countries, or had financial struggles. During his tenure at IUPUI, he served as chair of the graduate history program for two years, sat on many campus wide committees, and was an active researcher having dozens of articles published until the last weeks of his life.

Justin's academic interest in studying East Asia grew from four years spent in Japan and Laos as part of the United States Air Force from 1957 to 1961. While in Tokyo, Justin was an air traffic controller, in addition to being given temporary assignments as part of the special forces missions to Laos, as a forward observer.

After leaving the Air Force, Justin returned to the United States and completed an undergraduate degree at the University of Cincinnati in three years, followed by an MA in history the following year. While there he met his future wife Judith Freeman. They were married in 1965 and have two children Dr. Julie Anne Hertzler, Cleveland, (Dr. John Hertzler, and Professor Andrew Libby, Bloomington (Debby Harris).)

The delight of the last 20 years, however, has been spending time with his five grandchildren, Margo and Lauren Hertzler and Miles, Alex, and Sam Libby. Nothing made him happier than taking the whole family on vacations to Aspen, Martha's Vineyard, Tucson, and a special 50th anniversary trip to Costa Rica.

Along with his wife, he took several trips for research to Japan, Hong Kong, Singapore, Viet Nam and Cambodia. They also enjoyed spending time in Scandinavia, Central and Eastern Europe, Russia, the Baltics, and the British Isles. Justin was especially proud of being asked to give papers in Hong Kong, the Naval War College, Annapolis, and at many historical conferences around the country.

Justin also found great pleasure in volunteering. For several years he coached baseball at First Baptist. Along with his wife, he fostered seven infants from St. Elizabeth's, served as advisor to his temple youth group, helped establish and then resettle the first group of Russian Jews fleeing the Soviet Union, hosted multiple Japanese families when they arrived at IUPUI to study at the school of dentistry, and worked for many years on the Jewish Federation's "Super Sunday" fund drive.

In addition, for more than 40 years, Justin was a faculty advisor to IUPUI students. They could always count on a welcome from Dr. Libby when they arrived at his office. Almost every semester his classes filled, and he was happy to let any student willing to work hard enter. Even after his official retirement at 65, Justin continued teaching for another decade, reluctantly having to stop after his cancer diagnosis.

Throughout the last two years of Justin's battle with lung cancer, he was thankful for the support of his sister Rosalyn Holtzman, his nieces and nephews, and especially the many frequent visits, calls, and cards from his wonderful friends and neighbors. He was also thankful for the excellent care of people from St. Vincent's Hospice, My Extra Hands, and Bright Star who enhanced and extended the quality of his life. In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to Beth El Zedeck or Riley Hospital.

Funeral services were held on January 31st at Aaron-Ruben-Nelson Mortuary.

The Jewish Theatre of Bloomington Celebrates 15th Anniversary

The year 2020 marks the Jewish Theatre of Bloomington's 15th anniversary. Founded in 2005 by Producing Artistic Director, Audrey Heller, and Bakol Ruben Gellar, JTB is the only Jewish Theatre in Indiana. JTB, a 501c3 non-profit company, is dedicated to producing works that may be written by Jewish playwrights or that illuminate the Jewish experience while also relating to issues and ideas that are meaningful to a diverse audience.

Starting with choreographed staged readings, the company quickly grew into producing fully staged productions. Since 2011, the theatre has programmed at least two fully staged productions per year attended by ever-growing audiences and lauded in complimentary reviews. There have also been collaborations with Cardinal Stage, the Bloomington Playwrights Project, Stages Bloomington, and The Ryder. JTB productions are enhanced by talented IU Theatre Department acting, directing, and design students and faculty, along with local and regional Equity actors and designers. In November of this year, JTB closed its most recent production, "Oh God," a Divine comedy starring Equity actors Ken Farrell and Julie Dixon and local teen, Ron Kalinovsky. After a fully sold out closing weekend, JTB is exploring options to add additional performances to future productions.

For its May 2020 Midwest premiere of The Wanderers, the Jewish Theatre of Bloomington was awarded a Zone Arts Grant from the Bloomington Urban Enterprise Association, an Arts Project Grant from the Indiana Arts Commission, and a grant from the Jewish Studies Program at Indiana University. The play written by Anna Zeigler, will be directed by Martha Jacobs May 7–17 at the IvyTech John Waldron Arts Center's Rose Firebay.

In order to celebrate the company's 15 years of extraordinary Jewish Theatre, JTB will host a "Let's Celebrate!" 15th Anniversary Party at the FAR Gallery on March 8 from 5–7 p.m. This event will include a buffet style catered dinner from Board and Blade with complimentary beer from Upland Brewery and wine donated by Chateau Ste Michelle Wineries. There will be a silent auction featuring tickets for local performances, theatre classes, and other enticements. Musical entertainment will be provided by Associate Instructors of Classical Guitar at the Jacobs School of Music, Ben Jackson and Peter Pendowski, and by Bloomington's Klezmer band, Klezmorchestra.

Rediscovering My Roots

BY CODY VALLEZ NORTON

My mom is an American Jew, who was raised by Holocaust survivors and of Russian and German descent, my dad was a Mexican-American Catholic, and I'm... well, for a long time I wasn't sure.

At least, that was the case until I moved to Israel through Masa's Destination Israel.

The dualities of the Jewish State were something I related to: a nation teeming with love and hate, war and peace, religious and secular, Christians, Jews, and Muslims, and a whole lot of passion that drew me in like nowhere else in the world.

When I participated in Destination Israel, I had just suffered tremendous loss – my uncle, father, and grandfather had all recently passed away. I didn't find any resolutions to my grief. Instead, I found something better: a community that encouraged debate and argument – a place where I could find myself. I realized

There will be international dancing led by local folk dancer, Leah Savion, and more! Martha Jacobs, Adjunct Faculty member in Directing and Acting in the IU Department of Theatre, Drama, and Contemporary Dance, will be the Master of Ceremonies. Tickets are $75 and are available for purchase. JTB currently has opportunities for underwriters to help sponsor what promises to be a spectacular celebration!

For more information on the Jewish Theatre or our company history, please visit jewishtheatrebloomington.com or find us on Facebook at: Jewish Theatre of Bloomington or email Audrey Heller at hellera@indiana.edu.

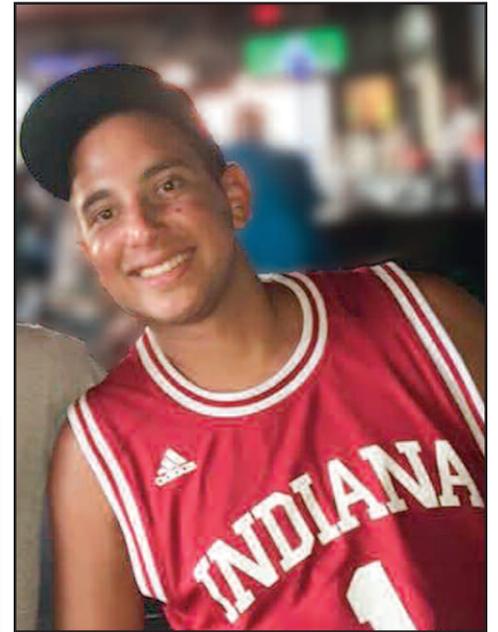

Anna Zeigler

The Wanderers by Anna Zeigler and directed by Martha Jacobs will be playing May 7, 9, 14, 16 at 7:30 p.m., and May 17 at 3 p.m., at the Ivy Tech John Waldron Arts Center's Rose Firebay. Esther and Schmulik are Orthodox Jews embarking on an arranged marriage, despite barely knowing each other. Abe and Julia are high-profile celebrities embarking on a dangerously flirtatious correspondence, despite being married to other people. On the surface, the lives of these two couples couldn't be more different. But Anna Zeigler's funny, insightful, and mysterious new drama explores the hidden connections between seemingly disparate people, drawing audiences into an intriguing puzzle and a deeply sympathetic look at modern love. ✨

I'm a little bit of everything – just like Israel itself.

Immigrants and travelers from around the world, like myself are moving here to Israel and being greeted by a welcoming culture and an economy ripe with opportunity. I'm working at OTWOI, a consulting firm for sports and energy technology, and building my own professional network in this fast-moving, exciting start-up nation.

Masa has changed my life in so many ways. I've met both Jews and non-Jews from around the world who come to Israel as part of Destination Israel. I've been encouraged to explore deeper questions in my own Judaism by meeting both Yeshiva leaders and Women of the Wall activists. I've met an amazing network of like-minded men and women who have made Israel feel like home.

For the first time in my life, I feel like I belong somewhere: part of the tribe of Israelis living in this mysterious land overflowing with passion. That passion is so potent here in everyday life and I'm learning to embrace it – passion for community, passion for culture, passion for conflict and debate, passion for food, passion for entrepreneurship, and, most of all, passion for life itself.

Cody Vallez Norton is currently interning in Israel through a Masa Israel Journey program. Although born in California, Cody rediscovered his Jewish identity while at Indiana University, and found his passion for the Jewish people and Israel while he was a student in Bloomington. ✨

INDIANAPOLIS, IN
PERMIT NO. 1321

On January 27, 2019 International Holocaust Remembrance Day, Holocaust survivors and leaders from the Cincinnati community marked the official reopening of the Nancy & David Wolf Holocaust & Humanity Center (HHC) in its new home in Cincinnati’s historic Union Terminal – the same train station where a majority of the 1,000 Holocaust survivors and refugees who came to Cincinnati decades before arrived by train to begin their new life.

It is the first Holocaust museum in the U.S. with an authentic connection to its site and several local Holocaust survivors were present to speak to their personal connection to Union Terminal and the import role HHC will play in educating future generations about the Holocaust. HHC will also offer a first-of-its-kind Humanity Gallery to introduce visitors to local and global topics that affect us all and allow them to explore historic moments in which individuals were activated to bring about change to their community and world, inspiring visitors to the Gallery to activate their own core strengths and be an upstander to current and future acts of violence, prejudice and hatred. With the rise of anti-Semitic incidents in the US in recent years and genocidal activity around the world, its opening is particularly timely.

Additional notable features of the new Holocaust & Humanity Center include:

Eyewitness accounts, interactive experiences and artifacts, will allow visitors to witness the strength and courage of the human spirit set against the backdrop of one of the darkest chapters in human history.

HHC is the latest addition to the Cincinnati Museum Center housed inside the historic Union Terminal, a working train station and the largest half-dome in the world reopened to the public in November 2018 following a $200 million renovation.

Cincinnati Museum Center also includes the Cincinnati History Museum, Duke Energy Children’s Museum, Museum of Natural History & Science, Robert D. Lindner Family OMNIMAX® Theater and the Cincinnati History Library and Archives and has been recognized by Forbes Traveler Magazine as the 17th most visited museum in the country, with more than one million guests annually, expected to increase with the new Holocaust museum. ✨
